SNOWMAN CAUSES SERIOUS RUNAWAY

HAROLD SUNDERLAND, MOLINE MAIL WAGON DRIVER, UNCON-SCIOUS HALF AN HOUR.

Found By Man Who Happened to Page Scene and Revived and Is Expected to Recover.

A big snowman, the work of boys Hying in the neighborhood, caused a serious runaway Friday night at Nineteenth street near Third avenue. Harold Sunderland, III Thirty-eighth street, mail wagon driver for the Maline postoffee, was injured and lay for half an hour unconscious In the snow. He was considered not of danger today.

Sunderland had gone to the depot for the 19 o'clock Stock Island train and was on his way to the harn. Driving out of the aller on the south side of Third avenue into Nineteenth street he came upon the enowman, which stood in the middle of the street. The horse took fright at it and lunged forward, the sugen striking a pole and throwing the driver out on his head. The horse continued its flight.

Members of the family of A. C. Woodyatt, living near the scene, heard the crash when the wagon collided with the pole and went out to investi-They could see nothing, however, the horse liaving disappeared and the body of the man being difficult to distinguish in the falling snow.

SERVICE NOT CONSIDERED WHILE WAR IS ON, MOLINE MAN DECLARES.

Makes Trip to England on Boat Loaded With Horses, Running Gauntlet of Submarines.

Chester A. Anderson of Moline is ome after a trip to England which he made as member of the crew of a vessel which took a cargo of horses to the British government. He has no hankering for further service on the sea while the present hostilities are on and says that many other sailors are of the same mind. He was glad to see the American shore.

The trip over started from New Orleans, where the ship, the Cornishman, took on a cargo of $20 horses leaving in December. The destination was Avonmouth. Beyond Key West two British warships fell in with the Cornishman and conveyed it to England. Some rough weather was experienced, but only two of the horses died, which is exceptional inasmuch as horses are hard to handle at sea.

The Moline man found time to visit Cardiff, Wales and London before the return trip began.

Hears of Deserters.

After the boat was a short distance OUT out on the way back its wireless operator picked up a message that four British freighters had been sunk by German submarines, and there was nuch uneasiness on board.

The trip, however, was completed without incident. Many of the crew left the boat when this side was reached. Mr. Anderson reached nome
